1. [ALASKA] [GOLD RUSH]. INGERSOLL, ERNEST [CAREFULLY PREPARED BY]. GOLD FIELDS OF THE KLONDIKE AND THE WONDERS OF ALASKA. A MASTERLY AND FASCINATING DESCRIPTION OF THE NEWLY-DISCOVERED GOLD MINES.HOW THEY WERE FOUND. HOW WORKED. WHAT FORTUNES HAVE BEEN MADE. THE EXTENT AND RICHNESS OF THE GOLD FIELDS. HOW TO GET THERE. OUTFIT REQUIRED. CLIMATE. THE NATIVES. OTHER VAST RICHES OF ALASKA. OTHER GREAT GOLD MINES OF THE WORLD. THE GREAT SEA FISHERIES, ETC., ETC., ETC. N. P,: Edgewood Publishing Company, [1897]. First edition. 8vo. Tan pictorial cloth with titles in gilt on the front cover with designs and spine titles in dark brown, decorated front and rear endpapers, xiv [2], 15 - 487 pp., frontispiece, introduction, illustrated, plates, 16" x 21" color folded map laid-in, which is usually missing. Introduction by Hon. Henry W. Elliott, Agent of the U. S. Government for many years in Alaska. Combines a history of the gold discoveries with practical information for prospective miners and a broader survey of Alaska's natural resources and peoples. It describes the discovery and working of placer deposits, the mining camps and early fortunes of the gold rush, routes to the gold fields, the equipment and provisions required for the journey, and the challenges posed by the region's severe climate. Ingersoll also examines Alaska's other mineral wealth, wildlife, fisheries, and Indigenous inhabitants. Of this well-written work. Kururz says: "Ingersole, a professional writer, capitalized on the Klondike discovery, and provided one of the earliest and most eloquent synopses of the stampede." "This book features chapters on the first arrival of the gold ships at San Francisco and Seattle in July, 1897; profiles of the first Klondike kings; and notes on the Yukon placers, various routes, outfits, mining camps, and Alaskan gold mines, and on the marketing, smelting, assaying, and coining of gold." Page edges lightly but uniformly tanned, minor to light wear to the spine ends and corners, else a very good clean and tight copy. 2. [ALASKA] [GOLD RUSH]. JAMES, BUSHROD WASHINGTON. ALASKA, ITS NEGLECTED PAST, ITS BRILLIANT FUTURE. Philadelphia: The Sunshine Publishing Company, 1897. First edition. 8vo. Author's photograph mounted on a front fly leaf and surrounding the photograph is "Compliment of Bushrod Washington James." Decorated green cloth with an ornamental color border of pine cones and titles stamped in gilt on the front cover and spine, 444 pp., plus 4 pp. of advertisements, frontispiece, preface, illustrated, 33 plates, 16 maps (one double-page), supplementary data, bibliography of Alaska, index. The author, a Philadelphia physician, author, and enthusiastic advocate for Alaska's development, combines an account of his own travels with descriptions of the region's geography, climate, glaciers, wildlife, Indigenous peoples, mining districts, and commercial resources. He discusses the discovery and exploitation of gold deposits, the routes available to prospective miners, the equipment and physical endurance required for the journey, and the difficulties of reaching the gold fields across rugged terrain. Additional chapters address the fur-seal fisheries of the Pribilof Islands and the controversy surrounding pelagic sealing in the Bering Sea. Kurutz says "This thick volume, while providing a superb overall description of the area, squeezes in much material on the 'boiling fever' over the Klondike, covering such routine topics as routes, conditions, and relations with Canada, especially with regard to mining laws, customs, and the Mounted Police." The author warns would-be miners that only those with excellent health, know-how, patience, and fiscal resources should go. From the library of former California State Librarian, Gary Kurutz. Letters on spine somewhat faded, but clearly readable, else a very good tight copy. $600.00

OF WESTERN AMERICAN HISTORY

11. BROWN, DEE. BURY MY HEART AT WOUNDED KNEE, AN INDIAN HISTORY OF THE AMERICAN WEST. New York: Holt, Rinehart & Winston, 1970. First Edition. Cloth. xvii, 487pp. Illustrated with 49 full-page photographs of various American Indians. Introduction. Notes. Bibliography. Index. "A successful best-seller and pro-Indian account of the plunder of the American Indian by battle, treaty, and disease during the second half of the nineteenth century. Based on speeches made by several prominent Indian chiefs...An interesting read, but with some biased history. In a book review in a Chicago Westerners publication, historian Don Russell referred to this work as "propaganda." Dust Jacket Description: [This book] "is a documented account of the systematic plunder of the American Indians during the second half of the nineteenth century, battle by battle, massacre by massacre, broken treaty by broken treaty...with the words of the Indians themselves, culled from testimonies and transcripts and previously unpublished writings...presents a unique and disturbing history of the American West from the Indian point of view." This work has become a modern classic of western American history. An exceptionally clean, tight, fine copy in the first state of the dust jacket, which has 4 quarter-inch closed tears to bottom edge of the spine of the dust jacket and a short, mark on lower fore-edge of front panel, else a fine, bright copy. Also, laid-in is a three-page article in Time Magazine, March 19, 1973 reporting the confrontation at Wounded Knee, South Dakota between militant Indians associated with the American Indian Movement (AIM) and local, state, and federal law-enforcement..."the Second Battle of Wounded Knee". $2500.00

First Edition. Disbound, and rebound into Quarter Leather with Decorative Boards. 139pp. Senate. 36th Congress, 1st Session. Ex. Doc. No. 42. An important report presenting all correspondence related to all aspects of this infamous event. The Mormons encouraged the Paiute Indians to attack a large train of about 140 emigrants. They killed 16 of the emigrants, who encircled their wagons and defended themselves for the next couple of days, at which time a group of Mormon's visited the emigrants and told them that the Mormons could help the emigrants get away from the Paiutes, but the emigrants would have to give up their weapons. The emigrants did and the Mormons led them on a march toward Cedar City, but along the way the Indians attacked from the side of the trail and joined the Mormons in the killing of the emigrant group. The Mormons kept many of the children, dividing them among several Mormon families, and the also kept much of the valuable merchandise that the emigrants were carrying. A thorough and important historic record. Fine in beautiful Marbled Boards and a blue Niger spine with title in gilt. $750.00

RARE 10TH CAVALRY REGIMENTAL HISTORY

13. ["BUFFALO SOLDIERS"]. GLASS, MAJOR E. L. N.-COMPILER AND EDITOR. THE HISTORY OF THE TENTH CAVALRY 1866-1921. Tucson, Arizona: ACME Printing Company, 1921. First Edition. Black Cloth. 141pp.+4 plates at end. Illustrated. Charts. Lists. Map. Dedication. Foreword. Introduction. Preface. "This volume contains the history of the Tenth Cavalry from its organization to present date, so far as can be gleaned from reports, records and personal recollections. No effort has been made to elaborate on incidents, the aim being merely to present an accurate and brief record of the regiment." The Tenth Cavalry, as one of "four regiments of colored soldiers", was formed on July 28, 1866 in "the reorganization bill of 1866". Within the next year, its men were recruited by Colonel Benjamin H. Grierson at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. They were immediately put into service fighting hostile Cheyenne Indians in various parts of Kansas, and spearheading the rescue efforts to the men trapped after the Battle of Beecher Island. In April, 1869 they transferred to Oklahoma Territory where they literally built the famous Fort Sill. They dealt with hostile Comanche and Kiowa Indians for years until they participated in the highly successful Red River War in the Texas Panhandle in 1874-75. Their headquarters changed to Fort Concho, Texas for 7 long years, from which they launched a successful attack deep into Mexico against Lipan Apaches and Kickapoo Indians that had been raiding into Texas in 1876. In 1880 they campaigned against hostile Apaches under Victorio throughout the Texas and New Mexico borderlands, and again in 1885-86. They were transferred north to the Dakotas in 1892, eventually participating in the Spanish American War, The Philippines in 1907, and the Punitive Expedition into Mexico in pursuit of Pancho Villa in 1916. The Tenth Cavalry officially disbanded on March 10, 1944. This bright, attractive, fine copy is from the library of longtime Chaplain in the Tenth Cavalry and all 4 "colored regiments", Colonel Louis A. Carter. After studying at Tuskegee Institute and Selma University, receiving a bachelor's degree from Virginia Union University in divinity, and subsequents doctorates from Guadalupe College of Texas and Western University in Kansas. Carter began his 30 year Army career in April, 1910. He was the only chaplain to serve in all four historically black regiments: the 9th Cavalry, the 10th Cavalry, the 24th Infantry, and the 25th Infantry. Known to many as the "Shepard of Buffaloes", Carter was promoted to Colonel in 1936...the first black chaplain to achieve the rank. A great association for this fine copy of a rare regimental, limited to only 100 copies. Carter has neatly signed the book on the front pastedown endpaper, and has also neatly, signed the upper portion of the front free-endpaper: L. A. Carter Chaplain 25 Inf. Nogales, Ariz Oct 1921. Protected in a half-leather clamshell box with title in gilt on spine. $4500.00

EARLY COWBOY & RANCHING CATALOGUE

14. [CALIFORNIA]. L. D. STONE & CO. ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE N0. 17 OF L. D. STONE & CO., MANUFACTURERS AND IMPORTERS OF HARNESS, SADDLES, BRIDLES, WHIPS. COLLARS. LEATHER, SADDLERY HARDWARE, SPORTSMEN'S GOODS, ETC. San Francisco: Wood & Company, Printers and Electrotypers, n. d. (ca 1890's). First edition. Small quarto. Textured flexible cloth with black lettering, 464 pp. Illustrations; business advertisements, index. A massive catalogue, issued between 1893 and 1898, from one of California's premier 19th-century wholesale and retail manufacturers of harness, saddles, bits, spurs and saddlery hardware through the turn of the century; in 1894 their top-of-the-line saddle was put on exhibition at the Chicago World's Fair. Their catalogue represented the most comprehensive selection of fine California spurs ever assembled. Bound in a mustard-colored faux alligator material, with some minor cover wear; errata slip tipped inside front cover, a small old water stain to front cover that gradually lessens through the fore-edge of first 20 pages, else a very good copy of one of the largest catalogues of its type that we have handled. $875.00

15. [CALIFORNIA]. [O'MEARA, JAMES]. THE VIGILANCE COMMITTEE OF 1856. BY A PIONEER JOURNALIST. San Francisco: James H. Barry, Publisher, 1887. First edition. 7 1/4" x 5" tan printed wrappers. 57 pp. Pioneer journalist James O'Meara was always a defender of the Law and Order party, which opposed the Vigilance Committee, though he was never a member of either. He describes the 1856 Vigilance Committee from the perspective of one who did not agree with them. The vigilantes briefly controlled the politics of California. Cowan 165 says, "The cover title bears the date of 1890. Mr. O'Meara was a non-sympathizer, and his book is written from the point of view of the 'Law and order' faction." The book recounts the murder of newspaper editor James King of William by politician James P. Casey in 1856; the public outrage over crime, election fraud, and corruption in San Francisco; the formation of the Vigilance Committee under the leadership of William T. Coleman; the Committee's creation of its own military force, courts, prison, and governing structure; the trial and hanging of Casey and gambler Charles Cora; the confrontation between the Committee and California's lawful government, including officials who opposed vigilante rule; etc. Small closed tear to top of front panel and with light chipping to spine as well as 1" chip missing from top corner of rear wrapper. Very good. $175.00

First Edition. #70 of a Numbered and Signed edition Limited to 100 copies.Stiff Pictorial Wrappers. No Pagination [32pp.]. Many illustrations from old photographs. With the exceptions of Major Reno and Captain Benteen, Edward Settle Godfrey is probably the most famous member of the 7th Cavalry to have survived the Battle of the Little Bighorn. Godfrey was active in subsequent reunions of participants and a frequent defender of Custer. The Introduction is by John Carroll. The excellent biography of Godfrey was written by Colonel Charles Francis Bates, and is very interesting. A fine copy. $175.00

VERY SCARCE 6TH U.S. CAVALRY REGIMENTAL

18. CARTER, LIEUTENANT-COLONEL W. H. FROM YORKTOWN TO SANTIAGO, WITH THE SIXTH U.S. CAVALRY. Baltimore: The Lord John Press, 1900. First edition. 8vo. Inked name of "A. E. Bates, Nov. 1900" on the front free fly leaf. Pictorial cloth, vii [blank], 317 pp., preface, introduction, frontispiece, illustrated, plates, teg, aftermath, index. Illustrations by Frederic Remington, Larned, Zogbaum, and others. The Sixth U.S. Cavalry had its birth during the Civil War with its first action at Yorktown, Virginia in 1862. From 1865 until 1871 the regiment was stationed in Texas protecting settlers from raids by the Comanche Indians along the frontier. After 1871 the regiment moved into Kansas and Indian Territory, and in 1874 were under the command of Col. Miles in his operations against the Comanches, Cheyennes, and Kiowas. The next ten years were spent in Arizona and New Mexico in operations against the Apaches. The last action against Indians was at Wounded Knee in 1890. In 1898 the unit operated in the Spanish-American War and distinguished itself in the battle of Santiago. A large part of the original first edition was destroyed by fire, making it one of the scarcest and most expensive histories of a major military unit. Alfred E. Bates (July 15, 1840 – October 13, 1909) was a career officer in the United States Army. A veteran of the American Civil War, American Indian Wars, and Spanish–American War, he attained the rank of major general and was best known for his service as Paymaster-General of the United States Army from 1899 to 1904. -- Wikipedia. In 1875 Bates transferred to the Paymaster department. His active Indian War period service included Fort Dodge and Fort Wallace, Kansas in 1865 & 1866, as well as Fort McPherson in 1869. Bates was an Instructor of Cavalry tactics at West Point from 1869-1873, before returning to the frontier of Wyoming in 1873. On July 4, 1874, Captain Alfred E. Bates led 63 men of Co. B, 2nd Cavalry, 20 Shoshone scouts, a few civilians, and 300 Shoshones under the command of their Chief Washakie in an attack on a hostile camp of Arapaho Indians. The battle resulted in the capture of several hundred Arapaho horses, failed to capture the Arapaho village of over 100 lodges. Bates had 2 men killed and 6 wounded, the Shoshones had 2 killed and 3 wounded, and the Arapaho had 25 killed and at least 20 wounded. The battle was fought in central Wyoming, where Bates was stationed at Camp Brown. Lightly sunned on the spine with covers lightly soiled and interior clean and tight. A very good copy. $1275.00

Cloth, 312 pp., frontis., proof of authenticity, preface, introduction, illustrated. Hildebrand belonged to the Independent Bushwhacking Department of the Confederate States of America. He recounts his family's early history, the violent political divisions that engulfed southeastern Missouri, and his transformation into a guerrilla fighter whose retaliatory raids and killings terrorized Union supporters and others throughout the region. The narrative describes his clashes with Union forces, the deaths of family members and associates, his efforts to evade capture, and the circumstances surrounding his final confrontations. Six Guns 686 and Adams One-Fifty 53 say, "A rare and readable account of this notorious outlaw's activities." Hildebrand recounts his early years in Missouri, his family background and the mounting conflicts that ultimately forced him into guerrilla warfare. Over the course of seven years, Hildebrand details raids, skirmishes, and executions carried out by his band of guerrillas, claiming personal responsibility for nearly one hundred killings. Professionally rebacked with original cloth spine neatly laid-down and new endpapers. A RARE FIRST-HAND ACCOUNT

22. [COLORADO] [OUTLAWS]. COOK, D. J. HANDS UP; OR, TWENTY YEARS OF DETECTIVE LIFE IN THE MOUNTAINS AND ON THE PLAINS. Denver: Republican Publishing Company, 1882. First Edition. Original brown cloth. 285pp. Frontispiece, Illustrations. An account of frontier crime and law enforcement by David J. Cook, founder and chief of the Rocky Mountain Detective Association. Drawing on his experiences as a detective, Cook recounts the pursuit and capture of outlaws, murderers, horse thieves, robbers, and other criminals across Colorado and the surrounding Western territories. Among the episodes are gang robberies, notorious murders, fugitive pursuits, prison escapes, and violent confrontations between lawmen and desperadoes. The narrative provides firsthand perspectives on criminal investigations and the challenges of maintaining order in the mining camps, railroad towns, and isolated settlements of the nineteenth-century West. Cook was a soldier, city marshal of Denver, sheriff of Arapahoe County, U. S. Marshal, Major General of Colorado Militia, and founder & chief of the Rocky Mountain Detective Association. "This book was written by Thomas F. Dawson, Director of the Colorado Historical Society ... Mr. Dawson told me also, that the reason both this work and his "Ute Massacre" were so rare, was because the copies were used to make paper wadding for cartridges during the Indian Campaign."... Edward Eberstadt." "A grisly and entertaining account of the experiences of General David J. Cook, Superintendent of the Rocky Mountain Detective Association. This sensationalist narrative takes the reader through the true history of crime in the Colorado area during the 1860's and 70's. The times were hard and the men desperate, and there was almost no law enforcement to speak of. The few brave souls who did try to battle crime saw such scenes of butchery as cannot be spoken of without a shudder." Some light rubbing with minor wear to edges and corners, else a very good copy. A rare work! $5000.00

32. FECHET, MAJOR EDMOND G. THE TRUE STORY OF THE DEATH OF SITTING BULL. NP: The Cosmopolitan Magazine, 1896. Disbound. Pages [493]-501pp. 13 Illustrations. An excellent account of a tragic and controversial event, written by a man who was stationed at Fort Yates in the northern portion of the Standing Rock Indian Reservation. He was part of the command that rode to the relief of the group of Indian Police at Sitting Bull's cabin, surrounded by hostile supporters of Sitting Bull, who had been shot and killed by the Indian Police while attempting to arrest him and transport him to the agency. Neatly bound with tape to create a spine. Near fine condition. $100.00

33. FRANKLIN, W. S. A TRAMP TRIP IN THE ROCKIES OF COLORADO AND WYOMING. Lancaster: The New Era Printing Company, 1903. First edition in original gray boards. 56pp. 12mo, [7], 56pp. Illustrations. Original watercolor (likely by the author?) tipped in, along with three original photographs (captioned on the versos) either attached or previously attached with adhesive. Signed by Franklin on the title page with a small portrait of him clipped and adhered to the dedication page. The book is a privately printed account of a 33-day expedition by William Suddards Franklin, an American physicist, electrical engineer, and educator and a sixteen-year-old college sophomore, whom he identifies throughout the narrative simply as "D." Research identifies "D" as Edwin MacDonald Stanton, known as "Don," born in 1879 and later becoming a surgeon. He was the son of Margaret MacDonald Stanton and her husband, Edgar W. Stanton. Identity was able to be determined because at the end of the book, "D" went home only to find his mother very ill and who passed away just four days after his return. "A beautiful Campanile now stands on the college campus erected in memory of D.'s mother by the state of Iowa; and from this memory-tower a chime of bells, placed by D.'s father." The Campanile at Iowa State University in Ames, Iowa, is one of the university's most famous landmarks and a major symbol of Iowa State. The tower was constructed in 1897–1898 to commemorate Margaret MacDonald Stanton, Iowa State's first dean of women. Her husband, Edgar W. Stanton, donated the original bells. The two men left Iowa at the end of the college term, traveled to Denver, bought supplies, and then went to Loveland. From there they began their journey on foot. They also purchased a pony and pack saddle, which immediately presented a problem because the pony had never been broken to the saddle. They traveled through Denver, to Loveland, Estes Park, over the Continental Divide/Milner Pass, Grand River, through the Grand Lake region, Medicine Bow Mountains, North Park, Rabbit's Ear Range and finally to Laramie. Franklin describes snow, fallen timber, mud, swollen streams, mosquitoes, rain and difficult trails. At one point they had to ford the Grand River seven times in a single day, eventually crossing the Medicine Bow range at the Bucking Horse Pass. On their trek, they spent time with E. B. Gould, a local hunter and trapper who lived in a shanty and survived largely by hunting, trapping and odd jobs. Gould was so impressed by the two "tenderfoots" that he decided to travel with them for a while. They hunted deer and elk and spent the Fourth of July in the Medicine Bow Mountains. Franklin's E. B. Gould was almost certainly Edward Bradley Gould. The evidence lines up unusually well ... Franklin identifies his companion simply as "E. B. Gould" and says he was a hunter, trapper, and seasonal worker living in southeastern North Park. Franklin says Gould had previously taken up a claim there, abandoned it, traveled overland to New Mexico, and then returned to his old shanty. Project Gutenberg, The National Register of Historic Places history for the Colorado State Forest Building Complex, identifies an Edward Gould, a Bostonian who moved to Laramie, Wyoming, as a teenager in the 1880s. It says he took up a North Park homestead in 1885, helped construct some of the earliest buildings in Walden, and later returned to his homestead. Other Colorado historical sources further identify Gould as a man who homesteaded approximately 640 acres in North Park. The community of Gould, Colorado, was ultimately named for him. Finally, Franklin and D. reached the Laramie plains. Their feet were badly blistered, so they abandoned their original plan of walking all the way into Laramie, sold the pony for five dollars, and took a stagecoach. They had been away from home 33 days, spending 31 nights in the mountains, and Franklin estimated that they had walked more than 350 miles. Some wear and scuffing at hinges where photos were attached and have pulled away along with toning to pages where photos are inserted. Cover boards with light soiling as well as rubbing to corner and spine tips, else clean internally and very good. A nicely printed Rocky Mountain narrative uncommonly encountered in the trade. $750.00

35. FREMONT, LIEUT. JOHN CHARLES. A REPORT ON AN EXPLORATION OF THE COUNTRY LYING BETWEEN THE MISSOURI RIVER AND THE ROCKY MOUNTAINS, ON THE LINE OF THE KANSAS AND GREAT PLATTE RIVERS. Washington: Printed By Order Of The United States Senate, 1843. First Edition of Fremont's first expedition to the Rocky Mountains. Octavo. Bound with transmission page, title-page, contents page and with frontispiece and five plates- three of which are tinted-, by E. Weber & Company of Baltimore. With a large folding map of the expedition. Marbled stiff wrappers, titles on a paper label affixed to the front cover, [6], [7] - 207 pp., frontispiece, folding map. This is Senate Document 243, 27th Congress, 3rd Session. Washington, [D.C.]: Printed by Order of the United States' Senate, 1843. Streeter 3130 says : "This expedition was designed by Senator Benton and the expansionist group in Congress to publicize the first main division of the route to Oregon, for though this was well known to the fur traders, the region west of the Missouri was still terra incognita to the general public." This report, as well as the expeditions themselves, received much promotion and exposure from Fremont's father-in-law, Sen. Thomas Hart Benton. The report guided Oregon emigrants and California gold seekers, and firmly established Fremont's reputation. The first expedition consisted of 25 men, with Kit Carson as a guide. They went a little beyond South Pass. A nicely presented and tight very good copy. $1850.00

York was an historical Idaho newspaperman and publisher known for editing the Owyhee Avalanche in Silver City and later relocating to Boise, where he also edited/published historical western works like Journal of a Trapper. Mountain man Osborne Russell was a relative of L. A. York. Born in 1814, Osborne Russell went West with Nathaniel Wyeth's second expedition to the Rocky Mountains and Columbus River regions in 1834. Russell helped garrison Ft. Hall for Wyeth, later joining Jim Bridger's brigade of Rocky Mountain Fur Company men. Eventually Russell became a free trapper for several years, operating out of Ft. Hall when it was owned by the Hudson Bay Company. Russell joined Elijah White's emigrant train to the Williamette River Valley in Oregon in 1843, where Russell helped organize the first provisional government in Oregon in 1843. He completed his journal of a trapper in 1847 or 1848, before going to California. Russell spent the remainder of his life in Oregon and

California, where he died in 1892. "The fur trade in its most colorful period."---Wright Howes. "Russell kept a journal and, an avid reader, his was literate, accurate, observant, perhaps the finest record of mountain man life and adventures extant."---Dan L. UNIQUE JOURNAL OF NORTHWEST COAST MARITIME FUR TRADE

38. [FUR TRADE] [PACIFIC NORTHWEST]. DEE, HENRY DRUMMOND.[EDITOR]. THE JOURNAL OF JOHN WORK, JANUARY TO OCTOBER, 1835. Victoria, BC: Charles F. Banfield, 1945. First edition. Cloth, 98pp. Introduction. Appendices. Illustrations. A journal of exceptional value, as unlike Work's other journals which described overland fur trade expeditions, the 1835 journal records a maritime fur trade. Hudson's Bay Company efforts were seriously cutting into the trade of their American and Russian competitors on the northwest coast. The editor's carefully documented study is of great value. Typed transcript of review of this work neatly tipped-in on front pastedown. Hudson's Bay Company, Winnipeg, Canada stamp on front free endpaper. On half pay from the British Army, Stewart came to America in 1832 and traveled west to the Rockies where he remained for several years. While in New Orleans during the winter of 1836-37, he met A. J. Miller, a young artist whom he took with him on his return to the mountains. This fortunate journey produced one of the great sets of portrayals of the Rocky Mountain West, for Miller's sketches, water colors, and oils rank with the works of Karl Bodmer and George Catlin." Apparently Stewart had many hunting and sporting adventures during his time in the Rockies. There is much on the fur trade as well. 43. GIBBS, JOSIAH F. THE MOUNTAIN MEADOWS MASSACRE. Salt Lake City: Salt Lake City: Salt Lake Tribune Publishing Company, 1910. Second edition. 8vo. Pictorial wrappers, 59 pp., introduction, illustrated, plates, portraits. The second edition is considered to be the "best edition," as it corrects statements made in the first edition published earlier in the same year, and provides the complete details of John Doyle Lee's second trial. The first trial had seven Mormons and five Gentiles on the jury, and Lee was acquitted of any wrong doing by a verdict of seven to five. There was such a hue and cry at the results of this verdict by citizens that the leaders of the Mormon community realized that justice must be served and Lee was tried for the second time. The results of that trial and John Lee's execution are fully covered in this booklet. Wear to corners and spine of wrappers. Wrappers are loosely held by one of two binding staples. Light soiling across the top edge of front wrapper. Very good. $200.00

A RARE & DETAILED ACCOUNT OF THE NOTORIOUS RAID

45. GREEN, C. R. [EDITOR]. QUANTRELL'S RAID ON LAWRENCE. BY L. D. BAILEY AND OTHERS. WITH NAMES OF VICTIMS OF THE RAID. Lyndon, Kansas: Privately Printed, 1899. First Edition. Sewn Self-Wrappers. 52pp. A detailed account of this notorious raid on Lawrence, Kansas during which many citizens were killed and much of the town was destroyed. At dawn on August 21, 1863, William Quantrill and his guerrillas rode into Lawrence, where they burned much of the town and killed or seriously wounded between 160 and 190 men and boys. This raid was the culmination of an ongoing conflict between the Free-State forces who controlled Lawrence and the pro-slavery partisans who lived in nearby Missouri. In August 1863, the Union commander along the border, General Thomas Ewing, arrested several wives and sisters of members of a notorious band led by William Quantrill. This gang of outlaws had scorched the region, terrorizing and murdering Union sympathizers. On August 14, the building in Kansas City, Missouri, where the women were being held collapsed, killing five. Quantrill assembled 450 men to exact revenge. The army headed for Lawrence, Kansas, long known as the center of abolitionism in Kansas. The raiders rode at night, entering Lawrence about 5 a.m. They burned buildings, looted stores and massacred men and boys, staying in Lawrence for about four hours before riding off. Women and girls were spared. Near fine. $1850.00

Cloth, 316pp., illustrated with 8 plates, map, notes, index. "Fitzpatrick (1799-1854) ranks with Jedediah Smith, Bridger, and Carson as the four greatest mountain men. His first trip over the Santa Fe trail was in 1831, with the caravan on which Jedediah Smith lost his life. Fitzpatrick was later a guide for such men as Fremont, Abert, and Kearny; in 1846 he was agent for the tribes on the Arkansas, Platte, and Kansas Rivers."---Jack Rittenhouse. "Fitzpatrick was one of the original Ashley men who traveled extensively in the mountains and was a close friend of Jed Smith. Known as "White Hair", he presided at the great 1851 Ft. Laramie Indian Peace Council."---Camille E. Cazedessus II. "Fitzpatrick was not only influential in shaping the fur trade during its formative years, but equally so as an early guide to emigrants and Army expeditions, and as an Indian agent, being generally respected red and white alike for his work in this connection. He has occasionally been hailed with some justification as the greatest of all frontiersmen of his period."---Dan L. Thrapp. The classic biography on this great frontiersman. A bright, tight near fine copy. A lengthy presentation by Hafen to Miss Stella M. Drumm, western history scholar and author, "With sincere appreciation for the important help given in the preparation of this volume and for other valued Western material given me. Am sorry this book went to press without fuller acknowledgement of your contribution to it. L. R. Hafen" $500.00

(ca 1965). 13 1/2" x 10 1/2" watercolor of "Little Beaver," a cartoon character in both cartoons and movies in the Red Ryder series developed by Fred Harman. Red Ryder became the longest-running and most popular comic character of the Western genre in movies, radio, comic strips, comic books, mass market retailing, and the collectors' market.

Today, Red Ryder has some of the longest business relationships in the history of the licensing industry. The cartoon strip ran from 1938 until 1965. This watercolor is framed to 18 1/2" x 15 1/2." The picture is inscribed at the top in Harman's hand : "Me plenty glad you like-um me, Hugh Gordon! Me like-um you too, you betchum !" It is also inscribed at the bottom right corner : "Here's Happy Ridin' on a long trail, Hugh. Fred Harman, Red Ryder." Provenance: Fred Harman Museum. Fine copy. $3750.00

MANUSCRIPT ARCHIVE OF WILLIAM E. CONNELLEY'S CLASSIC, WILD BILL AND HIS ERA

50. [HICKOK, "WILD BILL"]. CONNELLEY, WILLIAM ELSEY. ARCHIVE OF ORIGINAL MANUSCRIPTS, TYPESCRIPTS, AND HANDWRITTEN NOTES FOR 'WILD BILL AND HIS ERA'. Topeka, Kansas: Private Archive, Circa 1924-1930. Includes: 1). 44 pages of Handwritten Notes for this book, (in ink, and most on paper 5.5" x 8.5"); 2.) 7 Original Letters to Connelley concerning Wild Bill (4 typed, 3 handwritten, together 13 pages) plus 2 carbons of typed responses by Connelly, and boldly signed by Connelley---two of the letters are from A. D. McCandless, the son of Dave McCandless, famous for the Rock Creek incident; 3.) Approximately 181 pages of typed chapter drafts and notes for the book, many with handwritten corrections and additions, some quite extensive. As he has stated in the book, William E. Connelley spent 42 years gathering material for the book, WILD BILL AND HIS ERA. As Secretary of the Kansas State Historical Society, he had access to a rich store of information about Hickok, and he personally interviewed many who knew Wild Bill. In publishing his book, he hoped "to give an authoritative history of 'Wild Bill' Hickok." Connelley died in July, 1930, leaving an extensive, unpublished manuscript. His daughter, Mrs. Edith Connelley Clift, had assisted him with the manuscript, and was compelled to finish it and have it published. She wrote the last few chapters, and ultimately left much of her father's notes and manuscript unpublished. As she said in the Editor's Note for the book, "Much that is valuable has been removed, and much that was left has been condensed." As his daughter stated, much that her father had prepared in his manuscript went unpublished, including much interesting and important information. Of this archive, some of this manuscript is exactly as was printed in the book, and much shows an evolution of changes reflected in multiple copies of the same, yet each showing a succession of changes. Of the typescript portion, much went unpublished, and are noted with handwritten notation of it being "Discarded", showing chapter from which it was discarded. A search of bookseller's catalog and auction records shows that one other typed copy of this manuscript has been offered before---by the Eberstadts in catalogue 134:54 in the 1950's, and purchased by Coe for Yale University, describing the work; "The original, complete author's typed manuscript of the only definitive life of Wild Bill. The work is largely unpublished, although some of the material was used in the noted historian's much-abridged book WILD BILL AND HIS ERA, 1933." This manuscript, now in Yale, was a typed carbon copy without any manuscript notations or corrections. Our archive is in very good condition, and protected in a two-inch 3-ring binder. Connelley's extensive handwritten notes and notations lend great value and a special uniqueness to this archive! $3250.00

Cloth. 1890 clxxxiii-553pp. 1891 Volume 1 707pp. Volume 2 viii.-416pp. 1892 ix-1294pp. + Large, Color, Folding Map. We offer this 3-year run of Annual Reports as a group primarily based on common condition of original volumes, but more important from our perspective, is the insight that they provide into this historic period in the relations of the U.S. Army and government with the Sioux Indian tribe. They address the emergence of an Indian "Messiah" and the powerful influence that his teaches had on many tribes, but especially the Sioux. The resultant "Ghost Dance" craze created a dramatic increase in the tensions between various groups of the Sioux tribe and the U.S. Army, and ultimately resulting in the infamous tragedy of Wounded Knee. Additionally, and during the same month as Wounded Knee, Sitting Bull was killed by Indian Police who were attempting to arrest him under orders from Agent, James McLaughlin. This dramatic event is recorded herein. These annual reports address current conditions at all of the agencies and reservations, as provided by each agent, as well as an overview of conditions presented by the Commissioner, T. J. Morgan. There is some minor edgewear to each of these volumes. All are lightly rubbed with light sunning to the spines. All are tight and in original brown cloth. A FINE SET OF THIS MOST IMPORTANT SERIAL PUBLICATION OF NORTH AMERICAN INDIAN ARTS

54. [INDIAN ARTS]. HAMILTON, MARY [EDITOR]. COMPLETE 40-YEAR RUN OF AMERICAN INDIAN ART MAGAZINE. Scottsdale: American Indian Art, Inc., 1975-2015. Hardbound in red leatherette with gilt stamping. 40 volumes, 4 issues per volume of "American Indian Art Magazine," a superb series of magazines which began in 1975 and continued uninterrupted for 40 years, when it ceased publication in 1975. The magazine was a premier, Scottsdale, Arizona-based quarterly publication that served as a leading source for scholarly articles, auction results, and exhibit information on Native American art. It covered diverse, high-quality, and often antique art forms before closing in 2015. The publication was devoted exclusively to the wide variety of American Indian art, featuring contributions from leading experts, museum curators, and academics. It covered topics ranging from historic, pre-contact, and contemporary, with articles often highlighting specific, diverse regional styles. Known for its high-quality, well-illustrated, and authoritative content, it remains a significant reference for historical and contemporary American Indian art. The magazines provide valuable scholarly information solicited from the many experts that followed the arts of indigenous U.S. ethnic groups. The photography with which this fine magazine was illustrated was unsurpassed. In the magazine's inaugural issue, back in 1975, its purpose was said to be rooted in "an earnest desire to portray the art forms of the American Indian in a manner and format that will do justice to the art and its creators," and for 40 years and 160 issues, the magazine did exactly that! All magazines and binders are fine and unused. A beautiful collection! We're very pleased to be able to offer this uncommon find! $5000.00

RARE EARLY CATALOG OF NAVAJO ARTS

55. [INDIAN ARTS]. MOORE, J. B. [U. S. LICENSED INDIAN TRADER]. THE NAVAJO. Crystal Navajo Reservation, New Mexico: J. B. Moore, [1911]. First edition. Large 8vo. Stapled printed wrappers, 32 pp., foreword, illustrated from color plates and photographs, 15 color and 1 black & white plates showing Navajo rugs; black & white photograph illustrations of Navajo Indians, their homes; weavers; reservation; cattle and war chiefs Bi-Leen-Kla-Zhim (Black Horse); Hastin Sit-So-Ai; and Tai-O-Nie. John Bradford Moore (1855–1926) was a trader at Crystal Trading Post in New Mexico and became deeply involved in Navajo weaving and culture. He ran the trading post from around 1896 to 1911 and used catalogs (one in 1903 and a later one in 1911) to sell rugs directly via mail order to customers in the eastern U.S., since the remote location limited walk-in tourist trade. His publications are important early works in the study of Navajo weaving and material culture. This catalog was a promotional booklet featuring illustrations of Navajo rug designs that Moore encouraged local Navajo weavers to produce, with descriptions and prices. Some copies had Moore's name mechanically overprinted with another person's name — likely for resale or redistribution purposes. There is no overprinting of Moore's name in our copy. Cream printed staple-bound wrappers. Some staining on front cover; light wear; else a near fine copy of a rare Native American mail-order trade catalog. We find no copies in the market; no copies in online institutions and only 1 copy at auction in the last 30 years. A Tier-1 rarity among Southwest/Native American trading-post material. $2250.00

HUNTING BUFFALO IN THE 1850's & 1860's

57. [KANSAS]. STEWART, GEO. K. A TRUE STORY OF AN EARLY DAY BUFFALO HUNT IN KANSAS. N. P.: Privately printed, 1948. First edition. 16mo. 17 x 12 cm. [6 3/4" x 4 3/4"] Original cream colored Pictorial, stapled Wrappers, as issued. (13pp.) Inscribed on the verso of the "Foreword" page by the author. The author states that he is relating the stories as told to him around 1900 by his uncle who, as a boy, accompanied his father on three buffalo hunting trips to Kansas. No dates are given but he tells us that his father was born in 1831, and he went on these trips while in his twenties, so the hunting trips must have occurred in the 1850s or early 1860s. Along with accounts of buffalo hunting is an account of a skirmish with Indians. Prior to the skirmish, the Indians had told the hunting party that they were killing too many buffaloes and it would harm there need to survive as they depended heavily on the buffalo as a primary source for survival. A few days later the Indians returned in an attempt to stop the hunting party's slaughter of the buffalo. This is a very rare item as the author states in the foreword that only a few copies were produced to pass along to family and friends.This is the first copy we have handled or seen. Fine bright copy housed in a cloth clamshell case with titles stamped in gilt on the spine. $6500.00

ONE OF THE "BIG 4" CATTLE BOOKS

62. MCCOY, JOSEPH G. HISTORIC SKETCHES OF THE CATTLE TRADE OF THE WEST AND SOUTHWEST. Kansas City, Missouri: Published By Ramsey, Millett & Hudson, 1874. First edition. Thick octavo. Original dark green cloth. First state with longhorn impression on both front and rear covers [i-vi], [1]-427, [428 blank] [1-24 advertisements]. all edges in bright red, illustrated with 57 portraits, 53 views (most full page) and 16 cartoons from wood engravings by Henry Worrall. This copy, complete with the often absent illustration facing page 416. Joseph G. McCoy was born on a farm in Sangamon County, Illinois., in 1837. After marrying Sarah Epler in 1861, he entered the mule and cattle raising business. At the close of the Civil War, McCoy expanded his enterprise by buying animals in large quantities and shipping them to major livestock centers. McCoy viewed the livestock industry from a national perspective and recognized the need for better contacts between southwestern ranchers, Midwestern feeders, and meat-packers. He resolved to build a stock depot west of farming sections on the Great Plains to which cowboys from Texas could drive Longhorn herds. Abilene, Kansas, was chosen as the site for McCoy's cattle pens. He purchased a 250-acre tract at the edge of this frontier village and built a pen to handle a thousand head of cattle. He sent agents south to acquaint Texas cowmen with his plan to receive the fall drives. Although the railroad builders considered his plans impractical, he finally succeeded in obtaining cooperation from the Kansas Pacific Railway provided he assumed all the financial risks. The cattle would be shipped from his proposed stockyards to Kansas City. He then made an agreement with the Hannibal and St. Joseph line, which provided a route to Quincy, Ill.; from there the cattle could be sent to Chicago. The first herds arrived in August 1867;

an initial shipment to Chicago left Abilene in September. By the end of the year 35,000 head had been driven over the Chisholm Trail to Abilene, and in 1868 the number rose to 75,000 head; by 1870 the number doubled. Bill Reese states that the book is an "account of the opening of the Texas trails after The Civil War up to 1873...the first general account of the cattle trade, and is one of the pillars of any range library." Graff 2594 says "One of the most interesting and important books on the nineteenth century cattle trade." This is a handsome bright and tight copy with minor rubbing to the spine ends and corners, else near fine and housed in a full leather and cloth clamshell case with titles stamped in gilt on the spine. One of the "Big 4" cattle books and one of the most important on the whole industry. $9500.00

Cloth, viii, 685 pp., prologue, numerous illustrations, portraits, map, appendix, index. "The stories of 57 greater and lesser frontier peace officers and gunfighters." "This work first appeared as a series of articles in the Kansas Historical Society's Quarterly. It is a most valuable addition to the history of the Kansas cowtowns and their law officers. It should correct some of the false history and legendary trash which has been written about this period. It was taken from the newspaper accounts, Governor's reports, court records, and city records of that time. Its authors are two conscientious historians who are connected with the Kansas Historical Society and have access to the excellent newspaper files and other records of the society. I believe this to be one of the most important books on this period."---Ramon Adams. "It is a veritable encyclopedia, the most authentic and primary source possible to obtain on those personages of the Old West."---Paul I. 65. MILLS, BILL. 25 YEARS BEHIND PRISON BARS. (COVER TITLE). N. P.: Privately printed, n. d. (ca 1948). First edition. 12mo. Blue printed, stapled wrappers, 59 pp., illustrated. Born in Rains County, Texas. Beginning in 1910, at 17 years of age, the author served 5 prison terms in Texas, 1 in Oklahoma, and 1 in the Federal Penitentiary in Atlanta, Georgia. Mills was convicted of various crimes including horse theft, armed robbery, and counterfeiting. This interesting account gives much detail of the brutality of life in Texas prisons and prison farms. Information of prison breaks in Oklahoma and Texas is also related. 66. MILLS, BRIGADIER GENERAL ANSON. MY STORY. Washington: Press of Byron S. Adams, 1918. First edition. 8vo. Limp, gilt-stamped cloth, black front and rear endpapers, a.e.g., 412 pp. Numerous illustrations, 3 maps. Preface by General Nelson Miles. Valuable and vivid recollections by Mills of his service in Texas in the 1850's, the Civil War, service in Arizona, Crook's 1876 campaign, and his service in El Paso as Commissioner of the Boundary Commission between the United States and Mexico. His recollections of El Paso and west Texas are particularly noteworthy. Mills recounts his campaigns in the west from 1865 through the Custer campaign of 1876. He was a champion of Custer and accuses Terry of being unfamiliar with Indian warfare. His personal experiences on the Powder River Expedition, at the Battle of the Rosebud, and at the Battle of Slim Buttes are particularly noteworthy. Mills escorted General Dodge on the overland expedition to Oregon in 1867 and performed the same task with Lord Dunraven in 1873. He was also involved in the Black Hills Gold Rush. Errata slip has been affixed to front free-endpaper. An exceptionally fine, bright copy. $275.00

VERY SCARCE MONTANA SADDLERY CATALOGUE

68. [MONTANA]. COLEMAN, BERT T. and C. E. COGGSHALL. MILES CITY SADDLERY CO. Miles City: Miles City Saddlery Co., Circa 1911. First Edition. Decorative Wrappers. 173pp. Illustrated throughout. 36 Full-page illustrations of Saddles. 7 photographic Plates. This is their Illustrated Catalogue and Price List. They describe themselves as follows: "Miles City Saddlery Co., Successors to C. E. Coggshall, 17-19 S. Sixth Street, Miles City, Mont. Manufacturers of the Original Coggshall Saddles, Dealers in Fancy Bits and Spurs, Fine Saddles and Harness, Tents, Paulins and Slickers, Horse Furnishing Goods, Cowboy Boots and Hats, Montana Art Leather Goods. The Largest Exclusive Saddle Manufacturers and Cowboy Outfitters in the City and the State." Miles City, Montana was a legendary cowtown..."The End of the Trail" for many cattle drives in the late 1800's. Charlie E. Coggshall the saddle trade when he became 50% partner in Furstnow's Saddle Shop in Miles City. Although Charlie wasn't a saddle-maker himself, he was constantly developing improvements in the comfort and quality of saddles, ultimately perfecting the Montana Saddle Tree. Their operation produced thousands of high quality saddles, hiring many saddle-makers, many who produced 4-6 saddles per week. They sold Justin Boots and Stetson Hats, too. In 1909 Bert Coleman, Clem Kathmann, and Frank Jelinek bought out Coggshall and formed the Miles City Saddlery Co.. This Catalogue and Price List is believed to be the First Edition of this perfect-bound, detailed, illustrated, 173 page catalogue, and to have been issued in 1911. We have been unable to confirm this, and have been unable to find any catalogue earlier than 1925; and the prices in that catalogue are significantly higher than the prices in this catalogue. On page 15 they state that this is the latest illustrated catalogue, and also that the Original Coggshall Saddle has enjoyed 16 years of success. Knowing that Cogshall was already producing his saddles in 1894, the 16 years corresponds with the 1911 issue of this catalogue. Some light soiling and minor wear to spine ends. Some damp-staining to top edge of the last few pages, and some slight wrinkling to bottom edge of text block. A tight, clean copy of an important Montana saddlery catalogue. $850.00

70. MOOSO, JOSIAH. THE LIFE AND TRAVELS OF JOSIAH MOOSO. A LIFE ON THE FRONTIER AMONG INDIANS AND SPANIARDS, NOT SEEING THE FACE OF A WHITE WOMAN FOR FIFTEEN YEARS. Winfield, Kansas: Telegram Print, 1888. First edition. Cloth, 400 pp., preface, frontispiece (portrait). Mooso spent his boyhood in Canada and as a young man became employed by the American Fur Company. He relates an account of his overland trip to California and Oregon, and his experiences trapping on the upper Missouri and Columbia rivers. Captured by Indians, Mooso gives an exciting account of his captivity among the Columbia River Indians. Eventually escaping, Mooso traveled the Santa Fe Trail in the 1840's and relates his observations of Santa Fe and the Mexican people. Later moving on to Salt Lake City, he tells much about the history of the Mormons and the Mountain Meadows Massacre. Mooso's travels were extensive and he makes observations of Indians and their customs throughout the West. Eventually settling in Kansas, Mooso gives an account of the early settlement of Cowley County. An important work; of particular value are his experiences as a

trapper, his captivity by Indians, and his account of the Mormons. Minor professional reinforcement of spine ends and inner hinges. Very good. An exceptionally nice copy of this rare work. $1000.00

Six Score 81 says, "One of the "big four" cattle books; an indispensable source for research in the field. This issue, the "Treasury" issue, is the most desirable because of its maps and apparent priority of issue. It is a unique collection, and should be an early point of reference for anyone interested in this period. It contains more solid facts than any other primary source of the time." Herd 1674 says "Rare." "This book is held to be among the most important of the "big four" cattle books, and its contents were compiled by experts on the subject." Merrill p. 9 says, "The book deals with a unique subject, almost forgotten, a proposed cattle trail to connect Fort Griffin and Dodge City Trail at Fort Supply, Indian Territory, and proceed thence by a devious route to the Canadian line .... Nimmo's report is a fairly comprehensive analysis made of the range cattle industry of that time. The book is excessively rare." Streeter Sale 2377 says, "Nimmo's essay on the range and ranch cattle business of the United States, which comprises Part 3 of his report, is regarded as the best and most comprehensive treatment of the industry made to that time." Nimmo was a long time government employee and statistician who produced a variety of reports over his career; however, this is his most important work. An absolute cornerstone work on the cattle industry. A near fine, solid copy housed in a sturdy cloth slipcase. $9500.00

CHIPPEWA CHIEF & WARRIOR IN THE LAST INDIAN WAR IN THE UNITED STATES: OCTOBER 5, 1898

82. [PHOTOGRAPH] [CHIPPEWA INDIANS]. DRYSDALE, JAMES S. - PHOTOGRAPHER. ORIGINAL PHOTOGRAPH OF BUG-AH-NA-GESHIG, CHIPPEWA CHIEF AND WARRIOR. Walker, Minnesota: Quam And Drysdale Photographers, 1899. Large original photograph of Bug-ah-na-geshig, famous Chippewa leader in the Battle at Sugar Point, at Leech Lake, Minnesota on October 5, 1898. Image: 6" x 8". Mount: 9" x 11". "Bug", as he was called by many, was arrested in April, 1895 for selling liquor and was taken to Duluth to stand trial, but was released for the witness not appearing, yet was forced to WALK all the way back to Leech Lake. He continued to sell liquor, and in 1898 he was subpoenaed as a witness to a murder, but ignored it, rather than risk having to walk from Duluth to Leech Lake again. In September, 1898, Bug was arrested for failing to appear, but as the Marshal's were leading him away he called to his young men, "Where are all my boys?". He was immediately taken from the officers and rescued by his men. It resulted in 21 Chippewa's being wanted for rescuing Bug. U.S. troops gathered in Walker and on October 5, 1898 crossed Leech Lake by steamboats to Sugar Point, and began to arrest some of the wanted men. The Battle of Sugar Point is the result, in which 6 soldiers were killed, 9 wounded, 1 Indian policemen was killed, and 7 citizens wounded. Bug hid out in the woods, likely assisted by his brother, Red Hair, and was never arrested again. It was the last of the Indian Wars! He eventually returned to occasional visits to Walker, and even appeared in a local parade. The photograph was taken at Red Hair's Sugar Camp on Boy Lake on April 7, 1899 by James S. Drysdale. Colonel James Drysdale and Colonel M. J. Quam were partners in the photographic studio on Main Street in Walker, opened in March, 1898. The large photograph is quite striking as Bug stands, full-length in the center of the photograph. He wears a dark hat, has a plain blanket draped over one shoulder, wearing pants and a shirt. He looks straight into the camera, cradling his Winchester in his left arm, with a loaded ammunition belt around his waist. He wears the two-stranded necklace made of empty Krag-Jorgensen shell casings that he gathered from the battle areas at Sugar Point, a necklace that he frequently wore in his old age as he spent time in Walker. The photograph is in excellent condition, is somewhat dark due to setting in wooded area of Red Hair's sugar camp. The mount shows some wear at the corners, a tiny thumbtack hole in the center of the upper edge, and some soiling, not affecting the image. Printed across the bottom of the mount is: Bug-ah-na-geshig, Chief Warrior in Battle at Sugar Point, Leech Lake, Minn., Oct. 5, 1898. On verso is printed a description of Bug, the problems that led to the battle, and much about the Battle at Sugar Point. $1500.00

On the verso an early description is affixed along with the inked signature of "W. F. Porter." A scarce view of Andersonville prison during the Civil War. From the description on the verso : "No. 4 - North East view of Andersonville Prison, Ga., photographed from the Stockade in summer of 1864. Below is a part of the prison called "The Island," while beyond are more Tents with Prisoners in and out of them. On the right, the famous "Dead Line" extends over the top of the hill, to cross which was instant death. Further to the right the top of the Stockade is seen, with a Sentry Stand mounted by a Sentry on the outside, with one also on the top of the hill." However, online resources indicate that this description may be for a different view. The Chrysler Museum of Art identifies tis lot as "Southwest view of Stockade Showing the Dead Line. Thirty-three thousand Prisoners in Bastile, August 17, 1864." This is from Gardner's Photographic Sketchbook of the War (Hack Collection No. 2).(https://chrysler.museum.com/objects/32819/andersoville-prison-georgia-southwest-view-of-stockade). Card: 4" x 2.375". Image: 3.125" x 2.125". In 1862, the Sioux Indians of Minnesota suddenly attacked and killed hundreds of innocent, and largely unarmed settlers in the Minnesota River valley. The massacre continued for several days. Many of the settlers that were not killed were captured, most of whom were women & children, and many who were subjected to brutal atrocities. This famous image was taken by Adrian Ebell on August 21, 1862, a few days after the Sioux Uprising began. A group of refugees from the Riggs Mission are fleeing from the Indians, and have stopped briefly on the open prairie to have a meal. This image was published by Joel E. Whitney, a well-established photographer in St. Paul, Minnesota. Whitney took and published many images of Indians and the development of St. Paul and Minneapolis. Whitney went to the prison encampment of the captured and imprisoned Sioux near Fort Snelling and took photographs of many participants in the Uprising and massacre. In addition, Whitney published images of other photographers such as Adrian Ebell and Benjamin Upton. This image is a particularly rare image, taken in the field by Adrian Ebell and published by Whitney; only the third that we have seen. Image is clear and sharp, and The Whitney Gallery imprint on the back is recorded as having been used during the years 1862-1866. $1650.00

Original Photograph of the head chief of the Southern Arapaho for 34 years , from 1855 until 1889. A Cabinet Card. Image:4" x 5.5". Mount: 4.25" x 6.5". A clean, clear image. Little Raven is shown from the chest-up, taken from a front oblique angle. His hair is long, braided in two braids to the front, and at least one braid visible at his back. Simply attired in a shirt with buttons and a little over-shirt or jacket, with collar. Son of an Arapaho chief, Little Raven became head chief in 1855 at 45 years of age. Until the pressures brought on after the Colorado Gold Rush, Little Raven led his people to be peaceful, with other tribes and the few settlers. Though he was the first to sign the Fort Wise/ Fort Lyon, Colorado Treaty of 1861, he was quickly disillusioned with the translation and the failure of the whites to live up to its promises. Accordingly Little Raven was known to lead his hostile men during the mid-1860's. He signed the 1867 Medicine Lodge Treaty, accepting reservation. Chivington claimed to have killed Little Raven at Sand Creek, but that was false, as Little Raven was not there, and lived until 1889, leading the progressive element of his tribe for his last 20 years. Photograph shows some minor fading, but is clean and clear. The mount has some very light edgewear along bottom edge. White mount with gilt rule along the perimeter, printed along the bottom portion of the mount is C. C. Stotz El Reno. Oklahoma. Terr. On verso previous owner has handwritten: Little Raven Arapaho (Oh-hos-tee) Head Chief of the Southern Arapahoes, was notoriously hostile. Sand Creek 1864. A very scarce image of a major Chief of the Arapaho tribe. $850.00

A BRIGHT, NEAR-FINE COPY OF REMINGTON'S FIRST WORK IN THE VERY RARE SUEDE BINDING

88. REMINGTON, FREDERIC. PONY TRACKS. New York: Harper & Brothers, 1895. First Edition. 8vo. Pictorially stamped suede and full gilt, viii [2] 269 pp., with 70 photogravure plates and numerous text illustrations by the author. The author's first book publication as a writer and one of the classic illustrated works of the American West. A collection of prose pieces gathered from Harper's Magazine depicting U.S. Cavalry life, cowboys, Native Americans, hunting, ranching, and travel in the American West and northern Mexico. Among the subjects are the Sioux outbreak in South Dakota, a rodeo at Los Ojos, life with Mexican "punchers" in the Sierra Madre, coaching in Chihuahua, policing Yellowstone, and Army life on the frontier. This copy is one of the very few which seems to have survived in the deluxe binding [suede being notoriously fragile to wear and deterioration]. While the existence of this binding is no bibliographic secret, BAL was unable to locate a copy for examination, & Jeff Dykes in his Remington section of 50 Great Western Illustrators notes this binding as "an issue in full leather is reported." Very few other copies of this book in the rare original suede binding exist, evidently only four or five examples are known. It apparently is a special binding for either friends of the publisher, or of Remington himself. Some very slight rubbing to edges. Previous owner's small stamp in upper corner of front pastedown endpaper. A Bright, Near Fine copy of this Exceedingly Rare binding. A landmark work by one of the foremost artists and chroniclers of the American West. $5000.00

89. RICHARDSON, RUPERT NORVAL. THE COMANCHE

BARRIER TO SOUTH PLAINS SETTLEMENT. A CENTURY AND A HALF OF SAVAGE RESISTANCE TO THE ADVANCING WHITE FRONTIER. Glendale: The Arthur H. Clark Company, 1933. First edition. Cloth, 424 pp + ads., 2 maps, illustrations. Thoroughly researched and well-written, Dr. Richardson's classic account of the conflict on the southern Plains between Anglo-American encroachment and Comanche resistance. "...The book has long been considered a classic in frontier literature."--Arthur H. Clark Co. "The author tells the story of one of the most feared Indian tribes from both the perspective of the Native Americans and the Whites. This book shows the history was not one-sided, and both share responsibility for the hostility and deaths that resulted. Of particular interest is the chapter on the famous Adobe Walls battle. It tells the story from the Comanche side of the battle and explains the fascinating background, especially the role of Isatai, the young Comanche medicine man and prophet who, convincing the leaders of his magic and visions, created the one final effort on the part of several tribes to reclaim their buffalo hunting grounds." A couple of small, barely visible light spots on the upper front cover and a lightly bumped corner, else a fine, bright copy of an important and much-sought Arthur H. Clark Co. title. Highly recommended. $450.00

ENTICING IMMIGRANTS TO POST CIVIL WAR TEXAS

109. [TEXAS]. BRADY, WM. GLIMPSES OF TEXAS : ITS DIVISIONS, RESOURCES, DEVELOPMENT AND PROSPECTS. Houston: [A. C. Gray & Co., Printers], 1871. First edition. 16mo. Original printed wrappers, 104 [1] pp. plus color folding map, to the reader, advertisements, illustrated, index. A rare promotional booklet providing a favorable description of Reconstruction-era Texas, designed to entice immigration. The work was published by William Brady, a real estate broker in Houston in the mid-19th century. In his note to the reader, Brady writes of the homegrown nature of the production of the pamphlet: "The constant demand for information relative to the soil, climate, products, price of lands, etc., in Texas, has prompted the preparation of this book. Especially have these inquiries been directed to the condition of things near Houston, the great Railroad Centre ... Care and attention have been devoted to its subject matter and arrangements, and we are indebted to several friends in Houston for assistance in the preparation of the material. We have aimed at facts, and not at fancy, and labored to produce a book that will not be without interest to the people of our State, while it will furnish in a condensed form information of a desirable character to such as may contemplate making their future home in Texas." Brady includes sections on the welcoming nature of the state to immigrants, the health of the cattle industry and other commerce in Texas, the advantages of farming and the quality of land by region, the agricultural products produced through land cultivation, the favorable state of the "present and prospective" railroads, the future of the lumber market, the fine "Society in Texas," and a "detailed description of Houston that comprises eleven pages of the text plus another six pages on Harris County, where Houston is located." It even recaps the first annual State Fair of Texas which had taken place the previous year, not in Dallas or Austin, but in Houston. The promotional text is followed by eight pages listing available land for sale by William Brady, who obviously took the opportunity to promote himself along with Houston and Texas. The final twenty pages are composed of advertisements for local businesses, constituting an early business directory for Houston, with a handful of Galveston companies also placing advertisements. Among the businesses promoting their services here are printer E. H. Cushing, banker T. W. House, the Houston Direct Navigation Company, the Houston & Texas Central Railway, the Houston Cotton Press Company, and both Houston newspapers -- the TELEGRAPH and the TIMES. The hand-colored lithographic folding map shows all of Texas, with two inserts of the United States at large and the city of Houston. Designed and produced by Carl Hertzog. Illus. by H.D. Bugbee. Maps by Jose Cisneros. A truly great history of the West Texas frontier. Haley reconstructs the life and operations of the fort through military records, personal diaries, and government correspondence, offering vivid portraits of soldiers, officers, scouts, and settlers. More than just a military history, the book delves into the social, political, and economic challenges of frontier life. It highlights the interactions with Native American tribes, the harsh environmental conditions, and the broader implications of military presence on the settlement and development of West Texas. "Fort Concho was not only the center of significant events; it was the geographic and strategic hinge upon which history swung. From this vital pivot swung the great campaigns that swept the Comanches off the southern plains, that blocked at last the renegade Apaches along the Mexican border, and that extended a generally protective shield across the heart of Texas...by the very magnitude of its stage and the vital movements of its time, it was destined to occupy a place in history."--J. Evetts Haley. "This is one of the best books about any of the vital string of federal forts established in West Texas to tame the frontier."--John H. Jenkins. A RARE AUTOBIOGRAPHY

119. THOMPSON, THOMAS JEFFERSON. THE THRILLING ADVENTURES OF THOMAS JEFFERSON THOMPSON. Pensacola, Florida: Privately Printed, Burrow Press, 1922. First Edition. Pictorial Wrappers. 100pp. Illustrated. Thomson lived on a ranch near Colorado City in West Texas during the late 1870's; worked on a sheep ranch in the Black Hills of South Dakota; was a scout in Wyoming, Arizona, and southeastern Nevada; and lived with the Comanche Indians. He recounts experiences with the Comanches, including a battle with the Ute tribe; the rescue of a girl who was the lone survivor of an Indian attack on her wagon train; and an account of a gunfight in mining town in northeastern Nevada. An interesting story and quite a rare work. This book does not appear in Howes, Graff, Eberstadt, Decker, Soliday, Adam's Herd or SixGuns, Rader, or any bibliographic references we could find!! A 1" x 3" piece of lower fore-corner is missing and a diagonal crease across fragile front wrapper. Occasional wear to edges of wrappers. Very good. Protected in Half-Leather 4-Point slipcase with title, author, and date in gilt on the spine. $2000.00

120. VARIOUS AUTHORS. THE STORY OF THE HOOVER DAM AND THE BOULDER DAM IN FIVE VOLUMES. New York: Ingersoll-Rand Company, 1934. First editions except Volume I which is a third printing of the first edition. All five volumes and a complete set. All copies published in quarto as illustrated wrappers with a map on the front cover of each volume, 29, 39, 47, 47, & 23 pp., each volume illustrated from photographs and maps. All copies originally appeared in "Compressed Air Magazine" beginning in February, 1931 through and inclusive of September, 1934. Profusely illustrated promotional work from Ingersoll-Rand on the history of the construction of the Hoover Dam, Ingersoll-Rand supplied of most of the heavy machinery during construction. This set covers the history of the Colorado River and the events leading up to the beginning of construction; the development of Boulder City; the drilling of the four diversion tunnels through the walls of Black Canyon; the railroad system; the concrete and gravel operations; the Colorado Aqueduct; aerial cableways and penstocks; and how the power plant will appear when finished. Lots of nice industrial photographs illustrate the text. "This is the fifth and final volume of this series. It concludes an account of one of the greatest engineering works ever undertaken. As it goes to press, Boulder Dam is substantially finished. Six Companies Inc. have completed their contract, and their work was formally accepted by the Government on March 1, 1936. The Babcock & Wilcox Company is well along with the installation of the penstock pipes which will carry water to the turbines. A vast lake of clear water has formed behind the dam and the threat of flood has been removed from Imperial Valley. Fine progress is being made on the Metropolitan Aqueduct which will supply essential water to thirteen cities in Southern California. The transmission line to Los Angeles is almost ready. The initial generating units at the dam are being installed, and within a few months the once unruly Colorado River will have been effectively brought under man's control. In presenting this last booklet, Ingersoll-Rand Company desires to acknowledge its debt to the contractors and to the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation for their cooperation in supplying information and illustrations and in checking the manuscripts comprising the series of articles." All copies are in very good to near fine condition. $375.00

FIRST BOOK BY STANLEY VESTAL

121. VESTAL, STANLEY. FANDANGO, BALLADS OF THE OLD WEST. Boston & New York: Houghton Mifflin Company, 1927. First edition. Author's first book. Dec. cloth, 66pp. A collection of Western ballads about the adventures of Kit Carson, Kit Carson, Satank, Belle Starr, Beecher Island, Santa Fe Trail, Indians, etc. Dobie p.74 says "Vestal's Fandango, a tale of the Mountain Men of Taos, is among the most spirited ballads America has produced. It and a few other Mountain Men ballads are contained in the slight collection, Fandango, 1927." Walter Campbell p.233 says, "The ballad Kit Carson's Last Smoke has been more often reprinted than anything else this author wrote." Fine, bright copy. 122. WADE, B. F. (CHAIRMAN). MASSACRE OF THE CHEYENNE INDIANS. [Washington]: [Government Printing Office], 1865. First Edition. Half Morocco and Marbled Boards, with title in gilt on spine. VI, 108pp. Thirty-Eighth Congress, Second Session. In the House of Representatives, January 10, 1865. The Committee was convened to investigate all matters connected with the action between Colonel Chivington and the Cheyenne Indians and to ascertain who were the aggressors; whether the campaign was conducted by Chivington according to the recognized rules of civilized warfare; and whether or not it was forced upon the Indians by the whites. The investigation was virtually a court-martial of Chivington and Governor Evans, and reveals in detail the acts of cruelty, barbarity and murder perpetrated upon a body of unoffending Indians. "According to the report, U.S. Army troops...attacked without warning a village of Cheyenne Indians and killed over one hundred, three-quarters of whom were women and children"--Wagner-Becker-Camp 418. An attractive copy of this important report. Fine with some occasional very light tanning to a few pages. $500.00

OF THIS MONUMENTAL WORK

125. WHEAT, CARL I. MAPPING THE TRANSMISSISSIPPI WEST 1540-1861. San Francisco: Institute of Historical Cartography, 1957-1963. First Editions. Folio. Limited to 1000 sets. 5 Volumes in 6. xiv, 264pp.; xiii, 281pp.; xiii, 349pp., xiii, 260pp.; xviii, 487pp. Facsimilies of numerous maps, some color, some folded. Green levant-textured quarter buckram with sage buckram cover. Titles in gilt on spine. Fore-edge and tail left untrimmed. The series was designed by the Grabhorn Press and the first volume was printed by them. Volumes two, three, and four were produced by Taylor & Taylor, and Volume five by James Printing Company, all of San Francisco. The type for all volumes was set by Mackenzie & Harris, Inc.. This five-volume work describes the maps of Western America from the earliest cartographic conjectures to Spanish explorations of the fifteenth century, through early exploration and overland travel up to the beginnings of the great surveys and the Civil War. Dale Morgan's contribution to this classic work was greater than is generally recognized. From the forewords to the individual volumes it seems that Morgan functioned as an unofficial editor and research fellow. Wheat gratefully acknowledged Morgan's liberal contributions of information, footnotes, and editorial work. Of the text itself, Chapter 36 on Mormon maps in the fourth volume, and all of volume five (two books) was Morgan's work. Additionally, because Wheat was victimized by several strokes, about half of the second volume and ninety percent of the third is attributed to Morgan, though he claimed only the complete volume five in his own bibliography in the Morgan papers. A very fine set. All volumes have the original plain, brown paper dust jackets in very fine condition. No off-setting of dust jackets on endpapers. Volumes Four and Five (1) are signed by Wheat in a very shaky hand. Wheat's small bookplates are lightly affixed to the front endpapers in each volume. Laid-in are the original announcement and prospectus for Volume One and Volume Five. Also laid-in are 2 handwritten letters from Wheat's wife, Helen Millspaugh Wheat, to the previous owner of this set discussing purchase of volumes, signature requests, and Carl Wheat's health resulting from his stroke. Helen Wheat's correspondence is on the letterhead of The Institute Of Historical Cartography, while the previous owner's correspondence is on the letterhead of The Atchison, Topeka And Santa Fe Railway System. Lastly, we include a copy of MAPPING THE TRANSMISSISSIPPI WEST,1540-1861: AN INDEX TO THE CARTOBIBLIOGRAPHY, by Charles A. Seavey, issued as Occassional Paper No.3, by the Map and Geography Round Table of the American Library Association, in 1992...a highly desirable supplement. $3250.00

RARE WYOMING GOLD RUSH LETTER GREAT CONTENT

129. [WYOMING] [GOLD RUSH]. LEWIS, GEORGE E. SIGNED LETTER FROM A FATHER TO HIS SON RELATING SHARED EXPERIENCES IN THE MINING CAMPS OF ATLANTIC CITY, SWEETWATER COUNTY, WYOMING TERRITORY. JULY 24, 1872. Atlantic City, Wyoming Territory.: 1872. Written by George E. Lewis, from the gold camps of Wyoming in 1872, the letter reviews their shared experiences during the 3 year period that his son was with him in the gold camps. It recalls the gold that they personally mined, "the Indian massacres, the white men you saw brought into town killed and scalped as they were mining, not one half a mile out of Town. The long cold winter of 1872 with cabin buried in snow, the mercury 40 degrees below zero." At the southern end of the Wind River Range, not far from South Pass, Atlantic City, Wyoming Territory was founded in 1868 as a mining camp after the 1867 gold rush in the region looking to exploit the mineral-rich quartz vein called the Atlantic Ledge. It grew to nearly 2000 people. The "Indian massacres" that Lewis reports occurred during a 23-month span between August 1868 and June 1870. At least 20 miners and homesteaders were killed by the Arapahoe, Sioux, and Cheyenne in the region, with almost all of the dead suffering horrible mutilations. Gold Rush letters from California, Alaska, Colorado, and others are relatively common. Gold Rush letters from Wyoming Territory are very scarce, especially with such interesting content as this letter. The letter is very legible, written in ink on a single page, 8" long & 5" wide. The letter has been perfectly mounted on stiff book-board, in apparent preparation for framing. A nice letter in near fine condition. $1500.00

EXCEPTIONALLY INFORMATIVE LETTER

131. [WYOMING] [SHEEP RANCHING]. ANONYMOUS. LETTER ABOUT SHEEP RANCHING IN WYOMING IN 1931. WHEATLAND, WYOMING: November 13, 1931. A very informative, 3-page manuscript letter written by a young man to his Mother and Sister in 1931. The majority of the letter tells of buying, selling, and pasturing sheep in Wyoming. He tells of the prices for sheep at that time, and their efforts to acquire more sheep at the currently depressed prices. He tells of pasturing the sheep on the Mule Shoe Flats, where there is 15,000 acres of government land, and the challenges of bringing them home, crossing fenced ranches. Much is written about water issues, as it relates to availability and who owns what. He relates much about "big sheep country" up north, and conditions for grazing sheep year-round. Of their sheep ranch he writes: "I think we have a fine opportunity here on this ranch if we can just keep some one else from coming in and crowding us out of some of these water holes around here. This is a cattle country but there is a few sheep men getting started in here. Most all cattle men who borrow quite a bit of money are hard hit by the low prices that have been hitting them since the war. Cattle seems to require more feed in the way of hay, corn and oil cake". Three full pages, on two 8.5" x 11" sheets. One horizontal and two vertical folds. Clean and highly legible. $150.00

Complete issue. Revealing important discoveries made by the expedition of 1873 that led to making accessible the now famous park. Map with text shows the route of Jones and the location of Yellowstone bordering areas of Montana, Utah, Idaho, and Colorado. This Scientific Series Extra also includes an article on the Hayden Expedition of 1873, and six lectures given by Professor Agassiz on the Amazon Expedition. The sixth lecture in Agassiz's series is titled: "Men and Monkeys ... The Differences of Monkeys ... The Only Safe Ground Against Evolution." Minor splitting at folds, else a fine copy. $500.00

133. [YELLOWSTONE PARK]. CAMPBELL, REAU. CAMPBELL'S NEW REVISED COMPLETE GUIDE AND DESCRIPTIVE BOOK OF THE YELLOWSTONE PARK. Chicago: [E. M. Campbell], 1909. First edition. 12mo. Color decorated, pictorial wrappers, 173 pp., preface, frontispiece, illustrated from photographs, maps, plus a folded map affixed to the inside rear cover, index. Early twentieth century travel guide to Yellowstone for the prospective tourist that contains much detailed information, and is illustrated throughout with black and white views. Many interesting views of the park and its attractions and also views of stagecoaches, hotels, camping sites, Billie Hofer's boats, Old Faithful Inn, and much more. "Perhaps the word 'Descriptive' in the caption of this book is a misnomer, for who shall describe the wonders of a geyser like Old Faithful, or paint the beauties of the Grand Canon? Talmage with all the eloquence of his soul acknowledged the hopelessness of the task, and Moran put down his brush in despair. This Guide book is the easier task, and of more importance. What I have written here is after the experiences of more than a score of journeys through the Park, journeys not of the five-day sort, but with leisurely travel and long stops that I might see some of the greater glories that are not on the beaten track. And I have not been disappointed." -page.5 of the text.. Views are housed in the original slipcase [19 cm x 12 cm x 5 cm] Title, publisher and bands gilt stamped on the spine of the slipcase. Nice collection of views of Yellowstone that follow the tourist route through the Park, beginning at the Northern Pacific depot in Gardiner, and then south through the Gate and onto Mammoth into the interior of the Park. "The Yellowstone Park trip via Gardiner gives the maximum of time at all points of interest. More than that: it is scheduled to bring the Tourist to each point at a convenient hour when the time of day will permit of a full and satisfactory inspection of the formations; it also allows a full-day at Mammoth Hot Springs, at the Upper Basin (Old Faithful Inn), and at the Grand Canyon (new Canyon Hotel). It affords ample time for rest, for meals, for social enjoyment at each of the hotels and lunching stations, and gives opportunity for fishing and for side trips to many interesting points." - from a contemporary Northern Pacific guide. A RECORD OF TWO EXPEDITIONS FOR THE OCCUPATION OF THE OREGON COUNTRY, WITH MAPS, INTRODUCTION AND INDEX. CONTINUATION OF THE CONTRIBUTIONS OF THE DEPARTMENT OF ECONOMICS AND HISTORY OF THE UNIVERSITY OF OREGON BY THE OREGON HISTORICAL SOCIETY. Eugene: University Press, 1899. 9 3/4" x 6 3/4" in gray-green printed wrappers. [i]-xix, [xx blank], [1]-262 pp., tribute, preface, contents, introduction, index, 2 folding maps. Sources of the History of Oregon. Volume 1, Parts 3 to 6 Inclusive. In the 1830s Capt Nathaniel J. Wyeth led two expeditions to the Northwest. In the early 1830s Wyeth became interested in the Northwest and planned an expedition with Hall J. Kelley. In 1832 he proceeded independently, traveling to Fort Vancouver. Two years later in 1834, he led another expedition, founding Fort Hall in present-day Idaho and Fort William in present-day Portland, Oregon. Unable to compete commercially against the Hudson's Bay Company, he sold both fur trading posts to them in 1837. This item contains the correspondence and journals which record the expeditions of Capt. Nathaniel J. Wyeth in the Oregon Country 1831-1836. "The only diary kept of the first large emigrant train to Oregon. Crawford was a member of Elijah White's party, and traveled with Meek and Hastings. This is the first separate printing of the narrative that was issued in 1863 as a government document." Howes 719 says, "Wyeth, with Sublette, led expeditions to Oregon, in 1832 and in 1834, and established Fort Hall." A clean, tight copy. Fragile wrappers show moderate chipping to all edges and 3" split to upper portion of front wrapper along spine. $150.00

136. YOUNG, OTIS E. THE FIRST MILITARY ESCORT ON THE SANTA FE TRAIL, 1829: FROM THE JOURNAL AND REPORTS OF MAJOR BENNET RILEY AND LIEUTENANT PHILIP ST. GEORGE COOKE. Glendale: The Arthur H. Clark Company, 1952. First edition. Red Cloth, 222pp., illus., folding map of the Santa Fe Trail. Biblio., index. "The journals of Riley and Cooke recount the governmental response to demands for protection of the Santa Fe caravans. The accounts include information on the fur trade, the bents, international relations, and the trial and introduction of oxen for use on southwestern trails."---Clark/Brunet 281. "The best scholarly study of the Santa Fe Trail in 1828-29, with emphasis on the military escort in 1829 under Major Riley. Young proves that all accounts of the 1829 escort march were written by Lt. Philip St. George Cooke."--Jack Rittyenhouse. A near fine copy. $100.00
